ECON 110/6.0 Principles of Economics

Calendar Description:

An introduction to economic analysis of a modern mixed economy, including the roles of government. The microeconomics part of the course analyzes the behaviour of individual consumers and producers and the functioning of the market price system. The macroeconomics part examines the functioning of the economy as a whole, including the determination of national income, the price level, interest rates, the money supply, and the balance of payments.

Course Learning Outcomes:

- (i) Use the basic analytical principles and tools of modern economics to understand and assess observed economic phenomena, contemporary economic problems and government economic policies.
- (ii) Explain how resources are allocated and income is distributed in an economy.
- (iii) Describe and model the behaviour of economic agents, including households, firms and governments, and explain how these behaviours affect the determination of prices and quantities in individual markets for commodities and resources.
- (iv) Describe and model the relationships between aggregate economic variables, including national output, the level of aggregate consumption and investment, interest rates, employment and unemployment, and the average level and rate of change of all prices.
- (v) Explain how government policies influence the aggregate behaviour and performance of an economy.
